

Ellery at Nineteen Upon Receiving Her Two Year Medallion

Your birth brain
seemed perfect
except that you always craved more
food and touch.
You writhed
and screamed.

Your urges became
your commands.
No one could give enough.

You decided to survive.

Your birth heart
has learned
to sate
your own soul
for today
with love.

Lucia P. May
Originally published in The Mom Egg, Vol. 10